WHO CRIMSON HOLLOW ?

Crimson Hollow is the alter ego of independent artist Chris Hell, a songwriter and producer turning inner chaos into heavy, melodic anthems. Growing up between street pressure, late-night headphones and internet-age loneliness, crimson used music as a way to process anger, heartbreak and anxiety.

Blending rock guitars, trap-inspired drums and emotional vocals, Crimson Hollow lives in the space between aggression and vulnerability. Every track is built to feel like a movie scene: big riffs, cinematic sound design, and lyrics that read like diary pages torn out after a fight.

Sound: Crunchy guitars, 808s, dramatic drums, atmospheric synths

CORE IDENTITY

Voice: Confessional, cinematic, sometimes brutal but always honest

Mission: To give people in dark moments a soundtrack that says: you're not the only one going through this—and you can survive it.

ALBUM

DESCRIPTION

Guns and Guts is a concept-driven record about survival under pressure when love becomes a battleground, loyalty gets tested, and every choice leaves a mark. The album plays like a series of cinematic scenes: smoke in the air, neon reflections, roses on the dashboard, and consequences that never quite fade. At its core, it explores love versus self-destruction, the weight of trauma, regret and resilience, and the tension between loyalty, betrayal and isolation, ultimately circling back to the struggle of rebuilding after damage. The visual identity mirrors this world: the skull represents the cost of living reckless, the roses symbolize the beauty that survives the chaos, and the bullets stand for the irreversible decisions you can't take back.

ALBUM

INSPIRATION

This album is inspired by the feeling of living on the edge—late-night city streets, bad decisions, and love that feels as dangerous as it is beautiful. Visually, the skull, roses, gun and bullet imagery on the cover capture the core idea: life and death, romance and violence, beauty and brutality all existing in the same moment. Musically, it pulls from modern alt-rock and metalcore, emo and trap, and cinematic film scores: dramatic builds, explosive drops, and lyrics that read like scenes from a graphic novel. The goal is to turn real experiences of heartbreak, anger, loyalty, and regret into a stylized universe where every track feels like a high-stakes movie playing in your headphones.

Guns and Guts sits in the dark corner where alternative rock, trap-influenced rock, and emo metal collide. It's built on heavy guitars, crunchy bass and hard-hitting drums, but flexes modern 808s, sharp hi-hats and atmospheric synth layers you'd expect from trap and emo rap. Big, catchy choruses and emotional toplines make the songs feel huge and cinematic, while the aggression and distortion keep it rooted in heavy music. It's rock for night drives and mosh pits—loud, melodic, and unapologetically intense.

TOUR

PITCH

Crimson Hollow takes the Guns and Guts world to Australia with a run of high-energy, cinematic rock shows built for intimate venues and loud, emotional crowds. The set moves from heavy, mosh-ready moments to sing-along heartbreak anthems, all wrapped in the dark, skull-and-roses aesthetic of the album.
